Music Program at Frederic Baptist Church

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Porter of Wauseon, Ohio will have charge of the service at the Frederic Baptist Church Sunday evening, August 30 at 7:30 with an entire service of singing, testimony and scripture comments.

The Porters are summer residents at Bear Lake and have been closely associated with Pastor and Mrs. Olin for the past eleven years. Many churches in Northern Ohio and Lower Michigan have heard their programs with delight and blessing. You are welcome and we are sure you will enjoy them.

The gasoline seepage that has contaminated an area north of the AuSable River which is bordered by Cedar, Ionia, Peninsular and Ingham Streets, and stymied local officials most of last week, was thought to have been discovered late Thursday, according to William Valusek, city manager.

Valusek stated Monday, that he had called the Department of Natural Resources, for assistance in checking the possibility of any seepage into the AuSable. Seepage had entered the sanitary sewer system, and we are using all precautions, in checking the river, he added.

Officials of the DNR were expected in Grayling Monday afternoon.

The odor of gasoline had been reported in the neighborhood for some time, and was brought to the attention of city officials by Clyde Weiss, local heating and plumbing contractor.

Weiss had been called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Brown on Peninsular St., to check out a faulty furnace. Mr. Brown told the Avalanche, it was during this time, that Mr. Weiss turned some soil in his back yard, and noticed the heavy saturation.

State fire marshal, Sgt. Robert Doyle, was called in last week, and worked with city and oil company personnel in search for the leak.

According to Valusek, a leak was discovered in a 1,000 gallon tank at Vaughn's Mobil Station, while the tank was under pressure. The tank was immediately pumped out, and new tanks were being placed Monday.

Sump pumps, located in holes four or five feet deep, at the lowest estimated point of the water table have been in operation in the area since last week, Valusek said.

The city manager added, we are keeping a close watch on the area, just in case there may be other problems from other stations on Cedar St. and all are located on higher ground than the affected area.

Special to Crawford County Avalanche

The Ohio Army National Guard's 107th Armored Cavalry Regiment during training at Camp Grayling, declared a success by its commanding general and by regular army evaluators, climaxed here last weekend amid high praise for the friendly hospitality of Grayling area residents.

Major General Wilbur H. Fricke, the Ohio training commander, lauded "the splendid spirit of cooperation not only of official Grayling but of the merchants and citizens as well."

The Department of the Army's chief of reserve components,

Lieutenant General William R. Peers, noted that his visit to the Ohioans in training last week was one of several trips he had made recently to Camp Grayling and that he was impressed by the "tremendous support from the community of Grayling" for the National Guard. "This is very marvelous and good for both parties," he declared.

The deputy commander of the Ohioans training here, Brigadier General Erle H. Bridgewater Jr., said, "We've had nothing but the best results from our associations with the people in Grayling and surrounding communities. It is our hope that we will continue to come to Grayling from time to time for these periods of field training that are so essential to the development of effective armed forces."

A luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce August 19 honored Sgt. Donald L. Horn, 25, of Chillicothe, O., for producing the most outstanding public information program in the Ohio Guard during the past year.

He was presented gifts by local merchants, the Crossed Padie Award by Marie McIsaac, Miss Grayling 1971, and a bow and arrow trophy by Bear Archery.

Mayor Derek McEvers pointed out that the two trophies symbolize Grayling's reputation as the canoeing and archery capital of the world.

The luncheon is an annual event held during the Ohio Guard's yearly expedition to Camp Grayling for summer field training.

The meeting was well attended by a membership consisting largely of residents and leasees along the upper areas of the Manistee River.

Introduced and passed unanimously was the following resolution on zoning.

Whereas, the basic purpose of the Upper Manistee River Association is to help preserve the recreational and esthetic values of the Manistee River and,

It was also suggested in the resolution that the present advisory board on leases be changed to include at least 50% public membership.

"Invest In America"

Fishermen, as a group, tend to worry a little too much about the possibility of "fishing out" a body of water. In most cases, their concern is wasted because the average angler is really a poor harvester. More fish still die of old age or other causes than ever fall for a baited hook.

Some states still persist in sticking to short, rigid seasons so fish can take advantage of normal spawning seasons. Those which have done away with closed seasons, or made them so liberal they might as well be open year-around, still seem to have plenty of fishing to offer.

Consider bass, for example. Despite the fact that Michigan has had a bass opener before the bass usually spawn, most years, the quality of fishing hasn't changed a lot. Why should this be?

Bass, like other fish, always spawn far more eggs than would ever have a chance to grow to adulthood. One pair of bass will produce thousands of young but fisheries researchers know that no more than a dozen are apt to live until mature. Competition for food is usually the main reason for this.

Ten pairs of bass would thus produce about 144 mature bass per year, since nature takes her toll of the other young fish. Now say we allow an open season and fishermen are so successful that they catch nine pairs or 18 of the potential parent fish. Still left are the other pair that will produce their thousands of young.

Now, however, since there is no competition from other young, this pair could be likely to see 144 of their young live to adulthood. Meanwhile, fishermen have had the fun of catching the other 18 big bass.

There's something wrong with this reasoning, though. Tests made by fisheries scientists prove that no fisherman, no matter how skilled he might be, is going to catch 18 out of every 20 bass in a lake.

In an experiment, 1,027 marked bass were placed in a lake and fishermen were invited to try to catch them all out. In the first day, 50 were caught in an average of 24 minutes of fishing for each fish. By the end of that day, it was taking more than two hours to catch each bass.

The second day, catches were from five to six hours each. And, in the next three days, anglers had to try for more than 10 hours to catch a fish. The majority of the marked fish put into the lake NEVER WERE CAUGHT!

Hook-and-line fishing is a mighty inefficient way to go about harvesting any kind of fish in a lake. It compares somewhat with hunting rabbits by casting a carrot into brushpiles and a briar patches. If we had to hunt bunnies that way there would really be no need for any closed rabbit seasons.

This same thing goes for most kinds of fish.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

Joe's I. Q. is 85, Sam's is 150. Alice is fair as a lily; Lynn is ruddy and freckled. Carl plays great football, but Robert writes lyric poetry. Sue likes to cook, and Liz wants to program computers. Bill becomes a detective while Jack flies a plane for his country.

What can all this conglomeration have in common?

Nothing, you may say — no two people in the world are exactly alike!

But they do have something in common, you know — something very important — they are all human beings. No matter how different, the point is they have the same hopes and ambitions and frustrations as you and I.

You and I like to think we are a little different, of course. But you and I share something with all other human beings

— something very precious. We are all loved by God, and we should all return a little of that love to

Him every Sunday — in the church of our choice.

Landmark Sporting Event

Phoenix, Arizona, is shortly to be the scene of an international gathering that will make this desert city a close rival of the United Nations from the standpoint of sheer numbers of countries represented. The occasion is the 40th World Shooting Championships to be conducted under the sponsorship of The National Rifle Association of America.

In bringing the international championship meet to the U.S., the NRA is shouldering one of the greatest responsibilities in its 99-year-history. It is bringing together approximately 1,500 competitors from more than 100 countries. It is carrying out a complex program that involves not only staging the matches but getting the shooters and their guns in and out of the U.S., housing and feeding contestants, giving worldwide publicity to their feats, and keeping everyone reasonably happy. NRA representatives have been working for 18 months on the formidable task of preparing target ranges, acquiring interpreters, and resolving all of the thousand and one details that accompany a multinational meeting of this kind.

The fact that the 40th World Shooting Championships are to be held in the U.S. is a significant tribute to the stature of the one U.S. organization that has done more than any other to preserve a semblance of reason in controversial matters relating to the right of gun ownership by law-abiding citizens in our own country. The National Rifle Association's sponsorship of a 100-nation shooting competition should help to restore a measure of common sense to public concepts of the place of firearms in the home, in the field, and in sports.

A Tough Assignment

Much of the speechmaking and writing that has appeared in observance of the nation's 194th birthday last 4th of July had to do with how to remake the American system. Although many of the writers and speechmakers waxed eloquent on the "unprecedented" problems of our times and intimated the nation was in a decline, they seemed to come to a dead end when faced with the necessity of offering a substitute for the great American experiment.

Perhaps they had difficulty because there is no worthy substitute. What other nation, in a brief 200 years, has ever done so much for so many people? What other nation has enjoyed a greater degree of freedom and opportunity? In short, finding fault with America is a tough assignment — even for the skeptics.

State Police Director to Retire

Colonel Frederick E. Davids, 56, a 33-year veteran of the Michigan State Police and director of the department for the last five years, has announced he will retire October 17 and then will take a safety director position at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Davids was chosen in 1965 as the eighth commander of the department by then Governor George Romney. Davids was captain and commanding officer of the Detroit district and succeeded retiring Commissioner Joseph A. Childs. Successor to Davids will be selected by Governor William Milliken.

Davids, as did Childs, rose through the ranks from trooper to department chief. He enlisted in the State Police November 1, 1937, serving first at the East Lansing and Ypsilanti posts. Next assignment came in 1941 as fire marshal division detective in the Detroit district where he was promoted to detective sergeant eight years later.

When the department's racket squad was established in 1951, Davids was chosen to command it. He next served in the Detroit district in turn as detective and uniform division lieutenant before promotion in 1956 to captain with the uniform division staff at East Lansing headquarters. He was transferred to command the Detroit district in 1958. Appointment as commissioner followed seven years later. His rank was changed to colonel later in 1965 as the department made military titles for top command officers compatible with those in use from captain on down to trooper.

Levin Comes On Strong

The Aug. 4 primary had a vest pocketfull of surprises.

Sen. Robert Huber's strong showing in the Republican race for U.S. Senate nomination was perhaps the most obvious. Several legislative incumbents bit the dust. The strongest man in Michigan politics today — Gov. William Milliken — lost almost one-out-of-five votes in his Republican primary to an unknown maverick, Jim Turner. Computer-style voting, at least the Detroit brand, was snarled in snafus.

All of these could be chalked up as surprises, with varying elements of significance in each case. But to my mind, the most eye-opening primary result was the tremendously strong triumph of state Sen. Sander Levin for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Sandy Levin came from literally nowhere to a position today where he must be rated as a distinct threat to end the eight-year Republican reign in Michigan's statehouse.

Not many months ago, Levin was an articulate and respected state senator from Oakland county — one of the top Democrats in the legislature, to be sure, but legislative brilliance has never guaranteed statewide political prominence.

Levin also had been the Democratic state party chairman, assuming that role as sort of a concomitant a couple of years ago. Apparently he did well enough in that assignment, although not at a pace to make Lawrence O'Brien shake in his boots for fear of the competition.

And besides, bridging the gap from a state party leadership function to hero worship from the general electorate also has been an elusive transfer, as witness the recent attempts by such as Neil Staeble, or Zolton Ferency, or Lawrence Lindemer, or Elly Peterson.

But Sandy Levin decided to run for governor, and somewhere in the process, something happened.

According to the big city pundits — who have access to information of this sort which they share through their columns with such students of the political process as small-town pundits — Levin started out in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor way, way behind the better-known Ferency. One poll, according to the columnists, showed Levin with only an 18 percent name recognition factor, which is a pretty sorry showing as such polls go.

We are led to believe that Levin had a bit of trouble establishing an identity both with himself and with the voters and politicians; those who had heard of Levin didn't know much about where he stood on a lot of subjects.

But Levin did have a few things going for him.

One was money — his campaign was well-financed, and generally the heavy Levin expenditures seemed to have been wisely invested.

Another advantage was organizational support — the UAW, the state AFL-CIO, top Negro leaders in Detroit, and several other groups were working in Levin's behalf.

Despite being way behind Ferency just a few months ago, Levin still managed to put it all together for a steamroller victory in the primary, chalking up more votes than Ferency and two other challengers — Rep. George Montgomery and Macomb's George Parris — put together.

From where Levin was not so long ago, to where he was the morning after the primary, is a whale of a long road to cover in a very short time.

If these essential elements of campaign finance and organizational commitment worked well for Levin in the primary — and they did — there is no reason to think they will work any less well in the November election. As a matter of fact, with the light showing at the end of the long political tunnel, they may be even more effective.

What do the polls say now? They say Milliken is ahead. But they also said Ferency was ahead of Levin, too — way ahead. And look at what Levin and his campaign accomplished.

Make no mistake about it — the November race for governor is going to be a real contest.

Pinto, Ford Division's frisky new little car, kicks up its heels with two engines, a 1600-cc. base powerplant and a 2000-cc. option. With "Pintopower" to spare, it excels at turnpike speeds and in tight passing situations. Small and light, Pinto gallops through the heaviest traffic and can wiggle into the tightest parking place. Ford dealers will introduce the '71 Pinto on September 11.

Business Tax Relief Is Needed

In anticipating Congressional debate on appropriations bills, Alger B. Chapman, chairman, Squibb Beechnut, Inc. said that the main effort should be to curtail the growth of federal expenditures as much as possible. "Such an effort should be made in order to enhance the prospects for future tax relief for business," he said. "This is not a narrow plea for special treatment. The American economy is based primarily on our business structure. Despite the great growth of government in recent years, some two-thirds of our economy is private and it is this sector which must provide most of the jobs and all of the products for our more than 200 million people. This fantastically difficult task simply cannot be accomplished if the private economy is handicapped by an intolerable tax burden and constant government encroachment on private economic affairs," Mr. Chapman explained.

"Our successful past is something to build on; we must not let our continued long-range growth and prosperity slip away through foolhardy fiscal and economic policies born in political expediency."

Letters to the Editor

August 11, 1970
Today I realized it is about time to write a letter to the Avalanche. I really don't know where to begin but I shall try my best.

I have been living in Concepcion, Chile, now, for a period of almost two months. It is winter here and their winter weather has proven to be quite miserable. There is much rainfall and it is also very damp. To add to these circumstances they have very few heating devices. In our home we have one furnace and a little stove upstairs. I'm quite used to the weather now, but at the beginning I had visions of freezing to death!

The food I really love. En papardas are my favorite. I have found that I have gained weight, but to turn food down to a Chilean is like saying I hate you. I eat food, and so you eat, eat and eat. Elections is the big issue here at the moment. It is amazing to see how important this election is to the people and with very good reasons. The popula-

Road Commissioners Minutes

August 7, 1971

A regular meeting of the Board of Crawford County Road Commissioners held in their office in Grayling, Chairman Johnson presiding. Members present, Commissioners Harold T. Johnson, R. E. Shook and Wilbert E. Simpson, Engr. Mgr. Keir and Superintendent Norman H. Feldhauser. Absent, none.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read. A motion was made by Comm. Shook, supported by Comm. Simpson that the minutes be approved as read. All voted in favor, motion carried.

Applications for permits were received from General Telephone Company to (1) bury some cable and also carry on poles, service lines along various roads in Frederic and Maple Forest Townships and (2) to bury cable for a distance of 5 miles along South K. F. Lake Road, Sec. 55, T28N, R2W, Lovells Township. The permits were approved and signed by the Commissioners.

Following a general discussion of current problems the Commissioners and Engr. Mgr. Keir made a trip of inspection over Walsh, Brown Bridge, Morley, River and Shupac Lake Roads in Lovells Township. Upon returning to their office a motion was made and supported to adjourn. All voted in favor, motion carried, meeting adjourned.

tion and the economic development of this country is very poor. The people need so very much but don't know how to really work and to build their country. Considering that 67% of the Chilean people are in shums and without education gives you an idea of the tasks demanded of the new president. Allende has a good chance of being the next president. He is with the Communist party, but almost all the students and poor are for him. Tomie and Alessandri are the other two men running for the office but little will really be known until after the election on September fourth. The voting age is also twenty-one but the office is for a six year term.

As I sit here writing I could go on forever telling you about how valuable this experience has been to me. I have learned so much about people, their needs, and also more love for mankind. Also I feel so proud to be a citizen of the United States of America. I've seen my country from all angles and sides never realizing what a great country I'm living in. I have spoken for my country, knowing always that my country isn't perfect but to me it is the most wonderful country a person could claim as his own.

With all that I have written, I hope you have gained a little knowledge of Chile and my experiences here. I loved my family and will never forget so much in such a little time. I would also like so many of my friends at home who helped me come to Chile know that I have thought of you all often and again say thank you.

To close this letter all I can say is, "I've loved it, but there is no place like home."

Sincerely,
Claudia Henig

Hulbert - McLeod Vows Spoken

Patricia Jean Hulbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hulbert of Frederic, and Charles Rex McLeod, Jr., son of Charles Rex McLeod, Sr. and Mrs. Rose Wales of Grayling were united in marriage Saturday, Aug. 15. The wedding took place at the Memorial Church with Rev. Paul C. Frederick performing the ceremony before about 50 guests. Anemari Stancil presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length empire styled gown of white peau de soie over white taffeta. It featured a lace bodice, sleeves and train. She wore an elbow length net veil with daisy trim and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies.

Mrs. Ann Howe of Grayling, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were her sister, Sheila Hulbert of Frederic and Kimberly Johnson of East Detroit, niece of the groom. They all wore floor length gowns of yellow dotted swiss over yellow silk taffeta. Their headpieces were of yellow net with daisy trim and they carried bouquets of white daisies.

The bride's and attendant's gowns were all made by the bride.

Kerry Harwood served as best man and Albert Johnson of East Detroit was groomsman. Ushers were James and Brian Hulbert.

Following the ceremony a buffet dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. The yellow and white color scheme was carried throughout. The four-tiered wedding cake, which was trimmed in yellow was made by Diane Phillips.

The bride's mother chose a red dress for her daughter's wedding while the groom's mother chose tan. They both wore corsages of white daisies.

Following a short honeymoon in Northern Michigan, the newlyweds are making their home in Grayling.

The couple both attended Grayling High School and the groom served in the U. S. Navy.

Out of town guests were present from East Detroit, Berkley, West Branch and Manton.

HELPING HAND — E. N. Lozon, owner of the Shady Acres Grocery, Grayling, has serviced the area and the National Guard for nine years with his small store. But when the men of the Ohio 1485th Transportation Co., Alliance-Canton, Ohio asked Mr. Lozon to store a 200 lb. dressed pig, that marked a first. Lt. Steven Nappaver's men later roasted the pig at a company party.

Academic Degree Requirements Changed for RNS

MT. PLEASANT — Registered nurses planning to earn a baccalaureate degree from Central Michigan University will be affected by a change which does not allow the 30-hour credit previously allowed for their training as a nurse. The change in the allowed credit ruling becomes effective August 25, 1970.

Nurses who have anticipated working toward the academic degree, but who have not yet started, must apply for admission to CMU prior to the August 25 deadline to still be eligible for the credit allowance. Applications for admission are secured by contacting the admissions office.

The 30-hour credit block has been given to students having earned a nurse's certificate from a nurse's training school not connected with an academic institution. For those who when or later elected to continue on for an academic degree, this left an additional 94 hours to complete.

CMU's Off Campus Education is scheduling University credit courses in biology and sociology in Alpena and Traverse City this fall to allow nurses working for academic degrees the opportunity to take courses leading toward the degree. Off Campus Education staff members will be available in these two centers for consultation regarding degree programs.

Reading and Writing By Blind Is Eased

Blind people may be able to write and read conventional letters and numbers rather than having to learn Braille. A new type of plastic paper, according to Science magazine, may make this possible.

Letters written on the special paper by an oversized ball point pen or a blunt pencil automatically rise high enough to be felt and identified by touch.

The new polyethylene paper is distributed by Nu-Vu Products Co., Webster Groves, Mo.

New York is the leading state in the nation in the instruments industry in employment and value of manufacture, accounting for 32 percent of the total.

GERMAN VIEWPOINT... S/Sgt. Helmut Winterer, a Republic of Germany Army pilot, flies a U.S. Army helicopter during an airborne assault exercise at the Seventh U.S. Army Training Center, Hohenfels, Republic of Germany. He was the first Bundeswehr pilot to take part in a 10th Aviation Battalion "partnership" program designed to further relations between American personnel and their German counterparts.

Voice of the People

Dear Mr. Madsen:

Increasingly I have been seeing a host of bumper stickers which object to the supposed loss of patriotism in America. Yesterday I saw one which read: "Put your heart into this country or get your ——— out." I cannot help but believe that these are aimed primarily at the young generation and its protests, demonstrations, criticisms, and other habits; revolt, if you will. I would like to make a short attempt to explain a little bit about what it is that the youth are criticizing.

The young in America today are the first generation in the history of this country who believe that we may not have a future. It appears to many young people that we are indeed cascading towards destruction. The frightful pollution of our environment, the burdensome threat of nuclear annihilation, the expanding Southeast Asian war; these and other factors are understandably enough to make any concerned young person wonder about his future. It should be seen then, that the young iconoclast does not necessarily hate his country; he is, however, becoming increasingly anxious for changes to be made to improve it, as well as the world in general, and to allow him to live out his life with some measure of security.

Contributing factors to the loss of patriotism in America (and what the young intellectuals are rebelling against) are the lack of bona fides about our liberties, the dishonorable politics in the universities, the disillusioning handling of the adventure in space, the inferior and place-seeking high officers of the State, the shameful neglect of our landscape, an immoral war, and the disregard for community.

It is a well known psychological fact that frustration leads to anger which must be vented. For example, the Vietnam War has been protested and worked against for years, but we are still there, perhaps deeper than ever. The young, understandably, blame the "establishment" for this type of thing. To young people the establishment is readily represented by administration buildings, ROTC buildings, etc., and when the frustration and anger reach a breaking point, these are the immediate targets at which to lash out.

As previously stated, it appears to many of my generation that we are on the road to extermination. That American society is death-oriented. If you watch television and read the newspapers, a great part of it is taken up by killing, by murder, atomic bombs, M.I.V.'s, gases, bacterial agents, napalm, defoliants, asphyxiating agents, and we have war. All our ideas are death-oriented. The much-criticized open-air festivals, the drugs, and the nonconventional behavior of the youth can be seen then as an attempt, whether conscious or not, to steer clear of this death-orientation (which we consider to be unrealistic, hopefully). An attempt to discover what has got to be a more real world.

In our eyes then, what has to be challenged is a gerontocracy that is based not on organic needs, historic experience, human aptitudes, ecological complexity and variety, but upon a system of empty abstractions: money, power, speed, quantity, progress, vanguardism, expansion.

Certainly many of the goals and methods (especially the latter) of the youth can be considered revolutionary, violent, or disproportionate to the problems. Not to the young, however, for we are growing up in a world with problems and frustrations that our elders never had to be threatened with or experience. To us, these things are of crisis proportions and need immediate attention, not promises and tokenisms. The methods employed are at times questionable, but when the traditional channels of action are either closed or caught in the web of seemingly endless bureaucracy, there are few alternatives left.

I think that Margaret Mead has a plausible solution to the generation gap when she speaks of a "prefigurative" society. One in which the youth, to whom the future is now, ask the essential questions. Additionally, and ideally, enough trust is established between the generations so that the questions are respected as valid and so that the youth and their elders may then work together on the solutions. It should be understood that being militant about our social crises does not necessarily indicate anything at all about one's politics or love of country; it most assuredly indicates a desire to survive.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Lonely In
The Outfield

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was written somewhere, perhaps Tom Sawyer whitewashed it on a fence, that a father should take his son to baseball games.

My dad took me to Navin Field to see Hank Greenberg knock home runs into Cherry Street. And I take my son to Tiger Stadium to see Al Kaline knock home runs into the grandstand where Cherry Street used to be. Cherry Street was moved back and just the other day they renamed it Kaline Drive. Onward and Upward.

My only problem with my dad was that he wasn't just a fan; he could also play baseball. He once pitched a no-hitter for the University of Detroit and he was signed to hurl for the Washington Senators. Only a chronic sore arm prevented him from becoming a major league hero. At least, that's what Grandma and Grandpa used to tell me.

Naturally, Dad would like to have seen his only son shine on the diamond. He never said much about it, but I knew that Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges at Navin Field were second choices. He'd rather see me pitch for the Port Huron Skunks at Pine Grove Park.

So I tried. From the time I was old enough, I went out for every team there was. It turned out there were just three things wrong with my game. I couldn't hit the ball, I couldn't throw it, and I couldn't catch it. But I was a great cheerleader.

Because of my lungs, I was allowed to join several schoolboy teams. And in later years, I even belonged to an army team that starred a couple of guys who later played professionally. My position then was behind the wheel driving the team bus.

The only time I got in a game was when only eight other guys showed up. Then they'd stick me in right field and bat me 9th, behind the pitcher. Sometimes I played 10-man softball and the 10th man was always stationed right in front of me.

I didn't give Dad much to be proud of. He never complained, but I've never forgotten the humiliation of inning after inning in right field, never touching the ball. And when a left-handed pull hitter came up, the manager switched me to left field. And when a tardy teammate finally arrived, perhaps limping and blind in one eye, he'd always pinch-hit for me.

I was a real Charlie Brown.

So the other day I got wondering about my son, Eddie. I raised him to be a baseball fan — I like his company at Tiger Stadium — but I never pressed him to be Babe Ruth or Sandy Koufax. He's on a midget league team and I didn't want him to think he had to make me proud.

So I told Eddie about what a bum I used to be on the ballfield. I confessed to all those lonely innings, stuck far in the corner of the outfield where the ball never came.

"That's nothing," laughed Eddie. "I play the outfield, too. And there's always a man out there cutting the grass. He never stops; he just cuts around me. He knows nothing's going to happen out there. I'm getting to know him pretty well."

Marvelous. No wonder I like to watch ballgames with Eddie sitting beside me. Fortunately, we usually take his mother, too. If a foul ball comes our way, she can catch it.

What really bugs me is to read where some scientist just told Congress that Wheaties, Jack Armstrong's Breakfast of Champions, is no good. I grew up on that stuff. And this scientist says Wheaties has so little energy value, a guy might as well have a shot whiskey for breakfast.

Now he tells me.

Some people have it.
Some don't.

The cool, clean, comfort of Gas central air conditioning. Of course.

You see, Gas air conditioning is the greatest boon to comfort since the window. With it, you can really enjoy summer. Have guests anytime. Full dress or casual. Your guests will be comfortable in any part of the house. And remember those sleepless nights last summer? Forget them. Gas air conditioning will let you sleep like a baby. Housework is easier, too. Doors and windows stay closed on the hottest days. No dust. No dirt. No outside noises. Just cool, clean, comfortable air. Everywhere.

So if you're one of those people who don't have it, why not get it? Gas air conditioning is the finest you can buy. And it's easy to own. In fact, if you have a forced-air furnace you've got half the system right there. Credit terms are available. Call us, or your Gas air conditioning contractor. Be one of those who have it.

Art Exhibit Being Held At Kirtland

Horse Racing at Traverse Fair

Led by Ensign Knox, winner of the $9,000 Michigan Futurity and Shiaway Dream, his conquer in the $27,000 Wolverine Futurity, a tightly competitive group of 3 year old pacers is headed for the Michigan Colt Stakes at the Northwestern Michigan Fair at Traverse City on August 31.

In mid-July, at the Wolverine Futurities, Ensign Knox and Shiaway Dream met after each had won a qualifying heat in the event. In the finale it was the Chris Boring driven Shiaway Dream that won out in a crowd pleasing battle.

Two weeks later, Ensign Knox won the Michigan Futurity. With Don Hall, one of the all time race winning drivers in the state in the sulky, he twice defeated 11 others.

Not to be overlooked among the eligibles to this year's Traverse City Colt stakes event is a 3 year old by the name of Ebon's Bachelor. Fans will recall that last year as a 2 year old, Ebon's Bachelor set a Traverse City track record with his near 2:05-even time that was to stand for almost the entire racing season as the national season's record for a 2 year old gelding over a half-mile track.

The 3 year old pacer, one of five colt stakes events on August 31 at the Northwestern Michigan Fair assumes unusual importance this year. It is the final opportunity for several of the colts to earn points towards eligibility in the $10,000 colt stakes finale slated for early October at Wolverine Raceway.

The Michigan Colt Stakes on Monday, August 31 will be the first of a series of four nights of thrilling races under the lights. Open races on September 2, 3 and 4 with purses of over $4,000 each night have attracted outstanding horses and drivers.

An exhibit of twenty paintings is currently on display at Kirtland Community College for viewing by the public. This collection was chosen from the University of Michigan's 1970 Invitational Painting Show by Kirtland Art Instructor Duane Bastian.

The paintings represent twenty Michigan Painters, semi-professional and professional. The exhibit is sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts, The University of Michigan Extension Service, Division of Cultural Activities, under the supervision of Assistant Director, Michael Church, and Kirtland Community College.

Jean Paul Shuster, Ann Arbor Art Critic, mentioned in his analysis of the show that "Frederick Simpson of Farmington is near his peak in his large and impressive 'Eagle' and 'Jean Wetzler of Ida is outstanding and delights one with the shimmering textures and nuances of her acrylic 'Ice Storm' and Karen Bodyscombe of Ann Arbor is brilliant but perhaps a trifle dry textured in her high-keyed 'Summer Afternoon'."

Detroit Free Press Art Critic, William Tall, points out in his analysis of the 19th Annual Michigan Invitational Show that "It serves to demonstrate to the public and amateur beginner just what a part-time serious painter can do."

The public is invited to view the show which will be held through September 24th. The building will be open all day and evening on weekdays, with the exception of Friday evening.

BITS O' TALK

Dale Nielson and Greg Wert, were in Traverse City Thursday to attend the Cherry County Playhouse. While there they had the pleasure of lunching with Vivian Vance. Due to the crowded restaurant, she graciously invited the boys to share her table.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Stowolski of Detroit spent the weekend visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bud St. Germain.

Lt. Gen. Peers

with A Co. of the 216th Engineers. In civilian life he is a computer operator for Wearver Aluminum Co. in Chillicothe, O. He is married and has a one-year-old son.

"This is truly an honor," Sgt. Horn said. "I think it's important for people to understand the true story of the National Guard. Despite recent events, we are not a bunch of killers. I want people to know who we are and what we stand for."

LTC William A. Richards, assistant chief of staff of the Ohio Guard's Emergency Operation Headquarters, told the Grayling officials that local hospitality toward Guardsmen is an ideal example of community-military cooperation.

"That's why I keep coming up to Michigan year after year with my family for vacations," Colonel Richards added.

Also attending the luncheon were Chamber of Commerce Director Earl Longworth; Sgt. Horn's battalion commander, LTC Sheldon E. Sharrock, and his company commander, Cpt. Robert L. McGuire.

Col. Keith R. Harsh, chief of the evaluation team which judged the performance of the Ohio Guardsmen in training at Camp Grayling, gave the Buckeyes an unqualified "well done."

All Ohio units received satisfactory ratings, said Col. Harsh, who is senior army advisor to the Michigan Army National Guard. Enlisted personnel, he added, performed particularly well.

All objectives for this year's annual training were accomplished, he said, adding that the Ohio Guard compares favorably with the Indiana and Michigan units he evaluated previously this summer.

"Annual training," he said, "is primarily a learning period, and it appears that each unit is increasing its efficiency by learning here at camp."

Major General Fricke, the Ohio commander, said, "In all cases we've met and in some cases exceeded our training objectives."

The Buckeyes "successfully completed their unit training tests. And we've learned to control, coordinate and communicate among our units with expediency," he added.

There was no riot control training as such for the Ohio Guardsmen at summer camp because that can be done just as well or better in the more urban setting of the separate units' armories at home, according to General Fricke.

"Many of the lessons and tactics we've learned here in control, coordination and management of troops can be applied to most riot situations," he explained. "Most riot training can be taught as well at home station as here in field training. I feel we should use field training periods to accomplish those things which cannot be accomplished at home," the general stated.

Lt. Gen. Peers, during his visit here, pointed out that with the reduction of American forces in Southeast Asia, the nation will be relying more and more on its reserve and National Guard forces.

The Army's chief of reserve components told top Ohio National Guard officers at Camp Grayling they should give top attention to retaining present personnel and enlisting qualified and experienced Vietnam veterans and other prior-service personnel.

He said the Army is seeking Congressional approval to pay reenlistment bonuses to reservists and Guardsmen, a move he says will be very helpful.

Many Ohio units lost equipment to the regular Army when the Vietnam buildup began, but now as the fighting is scaling down, General Peers said, more and better material will become available for reserve and guard components.

In a note of caution, he expressed concern for security and protection of equipment at armories and attempts by "radical" elements to steal some of it.

The Pentagon official said the Army is seeking to trim the excess fat from its reserve elements in order to use them all to the best advantage in event of mobilization. He hinted this may be accomplished through a reorganization early next year.

No date has been set yet for the Ohio National Guard's 1971 training trip to Camp Grayling, according to General Fricke. He said it may be late June or the middle two weeks of August.

Natural Areas

and camp sites for those who wish to prolong their visit.

The Rosecommon Red Pine Natural Area Preserve is not as developed as Hartwick. It is an area set aside to preserve a piece of nature as she presented it to us.

This is an area where you can spend a couple of hours taking a leisurely stroll among the mature red and jack pines. One tree in this area was designated as Michigan's largest red pine until some one disputed the claim with a larger find.

The Rosecommon area is "unmanaged" to give that natural affect. Fallen trees are cut out by the Department of Natural Resources Foresters to make walking a little easier.

Both Hartwick and Rosecommon natural areas will be a relaxing afternoon for you. Maybe you might want to take some insect repellent to make you more comfortable. Have a pleasant visit to our natural areas.
